What makes people most happy?

The pie chart shows some factors that make people most happy between people under 30 and over 30. According to the pie chart, there is a considerable difference between this two chart. About 15% of people under 30 choose travelling; however, near 15% of people over 30 choose to be with family. Besides, as can be seen in the chart, the percentage of achievement at work are highest factors in both charts.

From my point of view, about 15% people under 30 choose travelling; however, near 15% people over 30 choose to be with their family. The reason why people under 30 choose travelling is because they are willing to achieve their goals when they are younger enough so that they are able to have more energy to face the problems. On the contrary, people over 30 choose to be with their family is because they decide to spend more time staying with their elder family members who are not excel at taking care of themselves. The choice is varies from person to person; therefore, they must have their reasons of choosing the things that make them most happy.
